Teachers at the Birmingham Metropolitan College in England must wear smart clothes. If they wear jeans or scruffy pants to work, the head teacher will send them home to change. The teachers are very angry at this. They said their bosses were acting like "fashion police". There are many new college dress rules. Teachers must now keep their hair tidy, wear business suits and skirts, have no tattoos that students can see, and keep ear-rings simple. The college said it was "important that our staff present a professional image".

It is interesting that the college has made these rules. In many colleges nowadays, it is sometimes difficult to know who is a student and who is a teacher. Many students are smarter than teachers – and I'm talking about smarter clothes here, not smarter intelligence. Teachers are professionals, so perhaps it is right they should dress well. It is OK for elementary school teachers to wear what they want because their students don't really care. I don't think it's good that a teacher wears a football T-shirt and baseball cap to class.

MARK

Meg: Hey, Todd. Are you healthy? Do you eat lots of fruits and vegetables?

Todd: I guess I am healthy. I do eat lots of fruits and vegetables, but I also eat junk food, sadly. But I try to eat lots of fruits especially to stay healthy.

Meg: What kind of fruits do you like to eat?

Todd: Well, I like all fruits. I love all fruits except pineapple. I hate pineapple. I don't know why. I just don't like pineapple. I don't like the taste. I don't like to chew it. It just feels funny. But I love apples, I love bananas, I love oranges. I usually have an apple every morning for breakfast. It's very easy to eat. And I just love apples because you can take them to school. You can eat them quickly. They're very easy to eat.

I also like oranges, and I love orange juice. So sometimes, I make fresh orange juice in my kitchen. So oranges are great. But my favourite fruits are bananas and strawberries. I love bananas and strawberries. And I love to eat bananas and strawberries together, so my favourite snack is to cut up some banana and then cut up some strawberry and mix them together, and then eat them.

Meg: Well, it sounds like you really a lot of fruits.

Todd: Oh yeah, I do.

Meg: What about vegetables? Do you eat vegetables everyday?

Todd: I do. I try to have a salad everyday, and I have a special salad I make and I call it my chunky, crunchy salad. And it's carrots, cucumbers and tomatoes, and I cut the carrots and cucumbers into small little squares. And then I cut up the tomatoes and I mix together. And the carrots, tomatoes and cucumbers mixed together, the colours are really pretty. And when you eat the salad, it's very crunchy and it's very chunky because it's all little squares. So I call it my crunchy, chunky salad.

Meg: That sounds delicious. Do you ever share it with someone else?

Todd: No, I don't but I want to because I really, I like it so much and I can't cook. So when I go to somebody's house and I need to bring food, I think, "Oh, I should bring chunky, crunchy salad."

Meg: Hmm, that's a good idea. Another idea is to cook some vegetables. Do you cook vegetables?

Todd: Not too much. I do cook asparagus. Asparagus is probably my favourite vegetable, and it's very easy to cook because asparagus, you just have to cut up into small pieces. And then you can put the asparagus in a bowl with some water in the microwave, and you can cook asparagus in about 30 seconds. So I eat asparagus a lot.
