RESPUESTA MODELO

Hi, Zack. There are some things you should know for your trip. We use euros in Spain so you can't pay with dollars. In order to go from Madrid to Barcelona you can travel by plane, bus or even train. The plane is usually the most expensive way and the train is more comfortable than the bus. Since you're coming in Summer you shouldn't forget your swimsuit and the sunscreen. Also, don't forget to visit the website of the Ministry of Health to check the restrictions in the areas you're visiting due to COVID-19.

I think that's all! Hope you enjoy your trip.

Bye.

TASK 1. LEONARDO DA VINCI (TRANSCRIPCIÓN)

Today we tell about one of the greatest 0 Example. THINKERS in the world, Leonardo DaVinci. He began his career as an artist, but his interest in the world around him drove him to study music, math, science, engineering and 1. BUILDING design. Many of his ideas and inventions were 2. CENTURIES ahead of his time.

We start with one of Leonardo DaVinci's most famous drawings called Vitruvian man. This work is a good example of his ever questioning mind and his effort to bring 3. TOGETHER art, math, and science. Vitruvian man is a detailed sketch of a man's body, which is drawn at the centre of a square and circle. The man's stretched arms and legs are in two 4. POSITIONS showing the range of his motion, his arms and legs touch the edges of the square and circle.

With this drawing, Leonardo was considering the size of the human body and its relationship to 5. GEOMETRY and the writings of the ancient Roman building designer Vitruvius. Leonardo wrote this about how to develop a complete mind: “study the science of art, study the art of science, develop your 6. SENSES, especially learn how to see, 7. REALISE that everything connects to everything else.”

Leonardo DaVinci spent his life studying and observing in order to develop a scientific understanding of the world. He wrote down his thoughts and 8. PROJECT ideas in a series of small notebooks. He made drawings and explain them with 9. DETAILED notes. In these notebooks, he would write the words backwards. Some experts say he wrote this way because he wished to be secretive about his findings but others say he wrote this way because he was 10. LEFT-HANDED. And writing backwards was easier and helped keep the ink from smearing.

TASK 2. THE DIARY (TRANSCRIPCIÓN)

0. example I am going to use this big notebook for my diary and write down everything I feel and do. I brought the book with me when I left home. I used it for English at my school back home. 1. And when I left, there was still plenty of pages not written on. So, it will be good for a diary. At home, I read a story called “The Diary of Anne Frank”. It was a very sad story but 3. I read it lots of times. Anne said it made her feel better to write things down. It helped her with all those troubles she had. 4. So, maybe my diary will help me feel better too. Tomorrow, it will be 2 months since I left home to come here. 61 days. Just two numbers when I write it like that. 5. 61 days. But, it is the slowest and longest time I can remember. How can 61 days go so slowly? I still think of home all the time. And I can remember every little thing about the island except how warm it was. I can't remember that because here it is so cold all the time. 9. But, when I lie here and close my eyes, I can see my friends and my family and all my favourite places. Mama and Papa...and Mele...and Metua...and Rima...and the big black rock where we swam in the lagoon...and the path that goes to the top of the mountain...and the cool wind at the top. 11. And if sometimes I can't remember everything there are the photos by my bed and all my seashells. 12. When I was a baby I was given to my grandparents because I was the youngest in our family and that is our custom. My real parents lived on another island. Our village is called Vaipaka and our house is a little bit back from the road that goes through the village by the hill.

TASK 3. SMARTPHONES (TRANSCRIPCIÓN)

Wooaooo! You have just received a present! Your first smartphone. Did you know you can do tons of things with a smartphone? 0B Example. One of the coolest things is that you can go on the Internet. 1A. The Internet is an amazing place to find new friends like you from all over the world. You can play games listen to music send text messages and learn lots of things. But there are rules on the Internet that should be followed. 2B. Every time we send a message to a friend it's like delivering the message in person, everything you write online is the same as a face to face conversation, virtual is real. 3B. When you express yourself remember that the words you use represent you. You are what you communicate. Take great care with everything you share online like information and photos about you and your friends if you have any doubts always ask an adult for help; share with care. 4A. Don't forget that sometimes it's best to turn it off and spend quality time with your friends and family. And always remember to be mindful of how much time you spend using your phone, ask an adult to help you set up time limits. 5C. Be careful when sharing pictures and information online, they can be easily shared by others and they can remain online for a very long time. Be yourself, especially when you communicate with other people online, the words you use represent you. 6C. Put your phone out of your reach when you are studying, it will help you to be more focused. When you enjoy time with your friends and family there's no need to use the phone so sometimes it's better to turn it off, don't you agree?

-Hi Hannah! You're spending time online, aren't you? I understand, there's so much interesting stuff and chatting with your friends on social media is so much fun. 7A. Sometimes, though, we need to be careful because with our behaviour we could hurt other people.

-What do you mean?

-Let's do a little test, OK? In the school Whatsapp group someone sends an embarrassing photo of your friend, how do you react?

-Hey guys, that's not funny. Why don't we delete the photo...

-Virtual is real. In a chat with a friend, as a joke, you use a not so nice word and your friend gets upset, what's your reaction?

-He's over reacting, you should have a laugh. 8B. I should put myself in his shoes I know that it was a mistake and I'll say sorry.

-Words have consequences. A friend tells you about one of her weaknesses and you really want to share it with others online.

-This is so funny, I'm going to post it. Can you imagine how many likes I can get? 9A. I am old enough to understand when it's right to post something or not and this time it's best not to.

TEXT 1. THE MICE AND THE ELEPHANTS

Long ago, in India, - 0A. (example) THERE WAS- an old deserted village. Empty were the old houses, streets and shops. The windows were open, the stairs broken. Making it one very fine place for mice to run around, you can be sure of that!

They made tunnels all through those fine old homes and buildings, forming great mazes, - 1M. WHAT GOOD TIMES THEY HAD -, with their many dinner parties and festivals, weddings and feasts. And so the time passed.

One day, a herd of elephants, numbering in the thousands, stamped through the village - 2C. ON THEIR WAY TO A BIG LAKE ON THE WEST -. All the elephants were thinking about as they marched was how good it would be to jump in that lake for a cool swim. They did not know (and how could they?) that as they marched through the village, those big elephant feet were stamping down the mazes and tunnels the mice made. What a mess those elephants left behind!

The mice quickly held a meeting. "If the herd comes back this way again, - 3H. OUR COMMUNITY WILL NOT SURVIVE -" cried one mouse. "We won't stand a chance!" cried another.

There was only one thing to do. A group of brave mice followed those elephant footprints all the way to the lake. There they found the King of the Elephants. Bowing before him, - 4I. ONE MOUSE SPOKE FOR THE OTHERS - and said, "O King, not far from here is our mice community. It's in that old deserted village you passed through. You may remember it?" "Of course I remember it," said the Elephant King. "But we did not know a mice community was there." "How could you?" said this mouse. "But your herd destroyed many of the homes - 5K. WHERE WE HAVE LIVED FOR HUNDRED OF YEARS -. If you were to return the same way, that would surely be the end of us! We are small and you are big, but we ask you, please. Won't you find another way to go home? Who knows, - 6L. MAYBE SOMEDAY WE MICE CAN HELP YOU -, too." The Elephant King smiled. Imagine – how could tiny mice ever help an elephant?! But he felt truly sad his herd had crushed the village of the mice, without even knowing it. He said, "There is no need for you to worry, - 7J. I WILL LEAD THE HERD HOME IN ANOTHER WAY -."

It so happens that nearby lived a certain king who ordered his hunters to trap as many elephants as they could. Knowing that the elephants came from far and wide to jump in the big lake to swim, they made a water trap there. As soon as the Elephant King and his herd jumped into that lake they were caught in the trap, one and all.

Two days later, the hunters dragged the Elephant King and - 8G. HIS HERD OUT OF THE LAKE WITH LARGE ROPES - and tied the elephants to big trees in the forest. When the hunters had gone, the Elephant King tried to think. What could they do? They were all tied to the trees but one elephant. She was free because she did not jump in the lake.

The Elephant King called to her. He told her that she must go back to the old deserted village and - 9B. BRING BACK THE MICE WHO LIVED THERE -.

When the mice found out the trouble that the Elephant King and his herd were in, they raced over to the lake. Seeing the King and his herd tied up, they quickly ran over to the ropes and began chewing. Soon, the ropes were chewed all the way through and - 10F. THE MICE SET THEIR LARGE FRIENDS FREE -. The elephant herd found a new way home and the mice community lived on for many years to come.

TEXT 3. MARK TWAIN

Mark Twain – 0D (example) WROTE - "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" in 1884. – 1A. SINCE - then, the book has been published in at least sixty languages. Some people say it is the best book – 2C. EVER - created by an American writer. American students still read "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" and parents, teachers and literary experts still debate the issues discussed in the book.

The writer who became Mark Twain was born Samuel Langhorne Clemens in 1835. He grew up in Hannibal, Missouri on the Mississippi River.

- 3B. LATER -, he wrote funny stories and called himself Mark Twain. Twain became famous for his story, "The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County" in 1865. It tells about a jumping competition among frogs.

Twain also travelled a lot and began writing books about his travels. His stories about a trip to Europe and the Middle East – 4B. WERE PUBLISHED - in "The Innocents Abroad." And his stories about life in the western United States became the book called "Roughing It."

In 1870, he married Olivia Langdon and moved to Hartford, Connecticut. During the 1880's, he wrote books for children, - 5A. SUCH AS - "The Prince and the Pauper." It tells about a poor boy who trades identities with a member of England's ruling family. Twain also wrote "Life on the Mississippi." This book describes his days as a steamboat pilot and his return to the river twenty years later.

Mark Twain was – 6D. ALREADY - a successful writer before he became famous as a public speaker. Over the years, he had invested a lot of money in unsuccessful businesses. In 1893, he found himself deeply in debt. So to earn money, he traveled around the world giving humorous talks. His speeches – 7B. MADE - people laugh and remember events they had experienced.

However, his later life was not a happy one. Two of his daughters died. His wife died in 1904 after a long sickness. Some critics think Mark Twain's later works were more serious – 8A. BECAUSE OF - his sadness. He died of heart failure in 1910.
