TASK 1

A friend of yours really loves gourmet food, and is thinking of visiting one of the famous Spanish Michelin-star restaurants. You read the following reviews about Martin Berasategui restaurant in a well-known gourmet blog, and decide to send your friend a short message with a summary of the reviews you have read.

Clepeclepe

New York City, New York

Lunch with a master

Given how long Martin Berasategui has been at the top of the heap of 3-stars, you might forgive him for resting on his laurels. But he doesn't. His menu is as innovative as ever, incorporating elements of contemporary cuisine but never straying far from the flavors and textures of actual ingredients. The service, expected to be seamless, was not merely efficient but charming and personal. A must!

Bernardverheecke

Bruges, Belgium

Disappointing

Berasategui is worth 3 Michelin stars only for THE service. The rest is just OK. One example is lobster salad: it is 95 % fruit and vegetables and only 15 grams of lobster: 2 tiny pieces. A big shame for this restaurant. I have more examples but too long to explain. Go to Michel Guerard or Troisgros.

Sneakypeaky

London, United Kingdom

Business trip but rather too plentiful.

What a completely unexpected joy. Had visited this place during a short business trip and never had any sort of real expectation as I would never class myself as a specialist foody critic. The place was really nice and subtle in design and the reason for that was that simply bring you great creations of complex food formations which seem to rise up from the place like a sculpture. Great tasting food and s great place to go, I possible will not get the opportunity to attend again but if was a nice place to go although admittedly I did not fully remember the trip as I had a little too much fine wine!

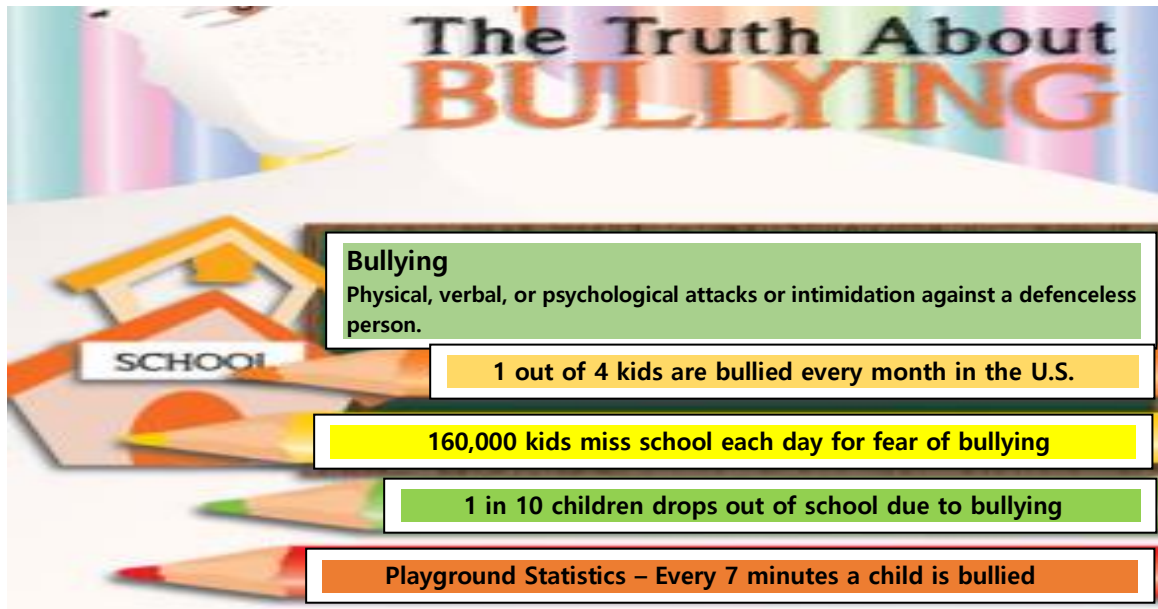

Write your message in 50-60 words.
