You and your siblings want to give your mum a present of a cooking appliance, but do not want it to be overpriced or too sophisticated. Send your siblings a 50-60 word WhatsApp text, telling them what you read about Thermomix in The New York Times.

Note: Mediation exercises require you to write a short text that goes to the point. Try not to reproduce exact sentences from the input text. Don't go over the word limit.

Essentially, the Thermomix is a blender that also cooks and stirs your food at adjustable temperatures and speeds. It also comes with a built-in scale, a steamer attachment, and a touchscreen that will walk you through recipes for everything from chicken cacciatore to cookie dough. After baking banana bread, making risotto, and cooking about a week's worth of other meals, we think it's a sturdy, well-designed, one-of-a-kind machine that outperforms lower-priced imitators. Ultimately, because of the price, we can't recommend it for most people. The Thermomix is fun to use, but we don't think most people should spend $1,500 on it. There are other, much less expensive appliances out there that can improve your speed and efficiency in the kitchen, and plenty of recipes on the Internet for relatively hands-off dinners that don't require any special tools.
