WRITTEN PRODUCTION

TOPIC: FASHION

You read this article in an online newspaper:

In Hard Times...Is Glamorous Optimism the Answer?

History shows that in times of trouble, humans turn to sparkle and shine. Liane Wiggins, head of womenswear at Matches Fashion said, "high shine and metallics exemplify what fashion is all about: dressing up, having fun and lifting the spirits."

Does such exuberance feel out of place? We all know how wasteful the fashion industry is!

It's important not to confuse consumerism with creative optimism," Francesca Muston, vice president of fashion at WGSN explains. "People are likely to express their reaction to global developments in different ways: there are those who will focus on simplicity and minimalism, and those who seek a release via creative expression," she continues.
