OPTION A

You have recently joined a timebanking programme in your community. In timebanking, you help someone for a given amount of time. For every hour of help you give, you receive an hour of someone else's help. No money is exchanged and the skills and services community members trade have the same value. Last week you ran errands for an elderly person. In exchange, you were taught how to repair your bike tyre.

Write an opinion article for your school magazine, including the following points:

- If timebanking is useful in today's society.
- The degree to which you found it a rewarding experience.
- Another service/s you would like to offer and receive, and why.

Going on holiday with your in-laws, parents or even your siblings' family can be tricky business, especially when you already have your own family. One of the greatest advantages is that your children bond with their cousins or grandparents. Still, some people argue that living under one roof creates tension, and that in order to avoid arguments it is necessary to establish cohabitation rules upon arrival and accept other ways to do things.

Write a for and against essay about this topic. Include the following points:

- The importance of family culture in Spain.
- Advantages and disadvantages of family vacations.
- Suggestions on how to prevent holiday conflicts and enjoy yourself.
