You have received the following email from a classmate of yours, Harry, who attends the same Official Language School as you and is a member of the School Council.

Dear classmates,

Our worst suspicions have been confirmed. As you may already know, the City Hall has decided to demolish our school building under the pretext that it is too old and too small. Consequently, we should all move to a new school which is further away from where we live and is harder to get to. As most of us feel that our school should be spared, we have decided to write a letter to the City Council to express our concerns and stop the demolition. Can you help us by sending in your ideas and suggestions to stop the closure of the school?

Yours,

Harry Meringuer

You have just found out that the local shop, Foody's, located in the residential area where you live, is losing its customers and might even close down as sales have been dropping steadily for the last eight months due to the opening of a new supermarket in the neighbourhood.

Therefore, the owner of the shop, Sarah Richardson, has asked her customers to suggest what changes could be made to improve the service, what products to incorporate and what sales methods the customers might be interested in.

Write a letter to the owner in which you mention some possible reasons why the shop has been losing its customers and try to help by suggesting what changes could be introduced both in the service and sales methods.

OPTION B

Dark tourism or black tourism, defined as tourism involving travel to places historically associated with death and suffering, has become extremely popular in recent years. What might attract people to places like former prisons, sites of human atrocities and genocide and natural or man-made disasters?

A popular travel magazine has asked its readers to send in a letter and express their own opinion about what attracts some people to dark locations.

Write a letter to the editor assessing the reasons that motivate more and more travellers to visit tragedy-stricken places like Auschwitz, Chernobyl or Ground Zero in New York, for example, as well as the benefits and drawbacks of dark tourism.
